When The Going Gets Tough... (Pt 2)

The revealing statistics in employment for women in technology paint an interesting picture of our labor force and the gaps within it. In light of the overall “graying” of America, it is important to consider these numbers as we address the growing need for technology expertise. The article below highlights multiple facets of these statistics that would be beneficial in solving the problem of hiring talent for our technical workforce.

Women in tech statistics: The hard truths of an uphill battle
